

7521110533.txt

I would like to briefly comment on the defence of net neutrality. Based on the information about net neutrality that i am aware of it seems unfair and unjust for an internet provider to control the publics use of internet. The internet is a wonderful and unique creation that provides the world with the means to communicate in the blink of an eye if major corporations are allowed to infringe upon our use of the internet you are simply depriving a thriving global community from geowing closer together in a benefici al way.

Sincerly,
Rylan Flint