To whom it may concern,

I am writing to express my conviction that net neutrality is a vital asset to the creative and economic future of this country. Please regulate ISPs as necessary to ensure that they are not able to throttle selective data in order to gain an unfair advantage over competitors, or to charge two times for the service they provide, both to providers and to consumers. This will harm innovation in our country, and will limit our ability to lead in the global economy.

Thank you for your consideration,

Paul Wright
