My husband, son, daughter and I run a niche community website for a living. We compete with very VERY large companies for Search Engine Results Placements which drives the traffic and advertising that provides our business. We are a small but viable business that pays taxes, employs people, and provides a valuable service in a manner beneficial to the public. Net Neutrality is not an abstract concept for us, it's our financial lifeblood.

I'm commenting to also urge Chairman Wheeler to scrap the FCC's plan to allow Internet service providers to charge for preferential treatment. These rules would destroy Net Neutrality, which is very important for the internet to remain the amazing engine of sharing, innovation, and technology that it is. I urge the chairman to throw them out and instead reclassify broadband (And all internet access services) as a telecommunications service. This is the only way to restore real Net Neutrality and save the internet from burdensome tolls and restrictions.

Sincerely,
Susan Martin
