

7521111674.txt

It doesn't make sense to have Internet speeds be different for different sites. If someone pays for a 10 mbps connection, shouldn't they always be able to get that bandwidth? By changing that based on the service, the ISPs are no longer providing what they claimed they were providing (read: false advertisement).