

7521111970.txt

I support net neutrality and find it personally offensive that internet providers can legally extort money from content providers.

The only impact this will have is higher prices for us consumers.