

7521112045.txt

Internet providers already have way too much power. Giving them the option to slow down certain websites will only make things worse. There is no scenario in which this benefits our society.