Dear Sir or Madam;

Broadband internet SHOULD be reclassified as a telecommunications (or "Common carrier") service. There is already far too much profiteering on basic commodities. Education, knowledge and enlightenment (all of which are massively prevalent and widely used on the "free web") should be FREE instead of arranged and prioritized by who has the dollar. The current US education "system" should serve as a portent for any alternative result to this issue.

Again, broadband internet is a common carrier service, PLEASE reclassify it as such.

Sincerely,

Adam Czerwinski
