Reclassify broadband internet as a title II common carrier telecommunications service. As a regular consumer of the internet, I am constantly using the internet as a means of communication with others. The implications for allowing internet carriers to discriminate against me or any other internet user or content provider on basis of sheer whim, bias, or the intent to create competitive monopolies is unjust and a threat to the current state of our economy and national communications. Please think of the impact your decision will have on the national and international community if you refuse to reclassify the internet as a title II common carrier telecommunications service. It undoubtedly fits the criteria presented under Title II. Furthermore, we the people whose activity you harmed will remember your actions should you choose not to reclassify the internet in this way. If not out of consideration for us (the consumers) or the international and national communities, then make the right decision in order to preserve your organization's integrity and credibility. If your interest is in enforcing proper regulation of telecommunication services according to the law, then you will reclassify the internet as aforementioned.
