

7521112743.txt

Internet Service Providers must be classified as Title II common carriers. Over the past 20 years it has become obvious that the internet is the most important medium of communication for the future. There already exists abuse that threatens to halt economic growth in this country. This is only going to grow into a larger problem without the intervention of the FCC.