It is imperative, for the sake of the free spread of knowledge in the USA (especially in a competitive global market), that the FCC reclassify broadband internet as a title II common carrier telecommunications service.

It is important to note that no benefit to the consumer has been presented as a reason to allow for tiered internet service. The sole beneficiary of tiered service is the provider's bottom line.

ISP's receive implicit public funding by their right-of-way access to our land for their cabling. Allowing them to receive this effective subsidy and simultaneously not be constrained as the telecommunications services they are is not in the public interest.
