

7521113727.txt

Net neutrality is an important part of what makes the internet so good for all of its users. Granted, it does not make the most money for internet providers, but it promotes the most creativity and free market on the internet. We don't pay more on our electric bill because of the things we plug in, why should we do the same with our internet service?