It is incredibly important that Internet Service Providers are reclassified as Title II Common Carriers. Not doing so will allow the free and open internet to continue to be stifled, slowed down, and have more roadblocks placed on it which will discourage e-commerce, internet traffic, and web companies from operating out of the US, and instead they will move to countries with less restrictive and corporately influenced laws regarding the internet.

Any establishment that seeks to hinder free and open communication has an unethical agenda behind it, and we cannot let corporate money get in the way of the fundamental human right to openly communicate.
