

7521114149.txt

Broadband internet should be treated as a common carrier service. Allowing service providers to speed up or slow down network traffic based on what that traffic is or who it comes from will be a disaster for consumers. With net neutrality, I can use something like Netflix for my TV and video service without having to worry that my ISP is going to throttle that traffic just because it comes from Netflix instead of my ISP's own TV service.