Hello,

Please classify broadband internet as a title II common carrier telecommunications service. Net neutrality is a real threat, and in a world where increasing regulations on seemingly everything are creeping in, the Internet is something you have the power to keep unencumbered by ISPs.

ISPs are not evil, however history shows us that when there is a competitive business advantage to be taken by a company, it will be taken -- just look at how American manufacturing has been all but completely transplanted to China and other countries.

You are in a unique position to prevent this from happening, and you will be heralded as heroes by everyone, except for businesses who are simply looking to turn a profit. Trading freedom for profit is not a standard that you want to set, nor perpetuate.

Please consider these points and classify broadband internet as a title II common carrier telecommunications service.

Thank you very much
