

7521114528.txt

Dear FCC,

I, as a U.S. citizen and user of the internet, want to urge you to reclassify broadband internet as a telecommunications ("common carrier") service, so as to keep all of the internet free and open to everyone at the same speed without the interference of internet providers trying to use access and speed to eliminate competition. Without this freedom, we might lose the internet's democratized ability for everyone to compete in a global marketplace of information.