As an independent game developer, my livelihood is on the Internet, from building awareness of and selling my products. If Internet service is tiered to where potential customers may not be able to enjoy my games because their service doesn't include certain packages or they have very slow download speeds for buying into a cheaper service plan, this could devastate my business.

This will also severely limit smaller ISPs from growing or becoming competitive with the larger companies like Comcast and AT&T, who already have near monopoly in most areas.

Please, classify broadband Internet as a title II telecommunications service so this can never happen.
