

7521114639.txt

The internet belongs to everyone. Giving a company the power to control data undermines the beauty and potency of the internet -- it destroys what makes it great: free and equal trade of information.

Net Neutrality will ensure American ingenuity for years to come and, in a nation with a vanishing middle class, it's more important now than ever that we fight for equality -- even if it's just for equality of data.