It is my belief and the belief of many people I know that the FCC should reclassify broadband internet as a telecommunications (or "Common carrier") service. Right now broadband is regulated like TV or radio, which doesn't make sense. This classification benefits nobody except the profit and pocketbooks of internet service providers, who are using their position as a middleman to unethically deter internet users from utilizing a service they already (in most cases) pay a considerable amount for. Thank you for your time and careful consideration of this issue beyond corporate interests and short term financial benefit for a small group.
