

7521115436.txt

It was not obvious in the beginnings of the internet, but it is more than obvious now: data is the modern utility, and it makes no sense to consider and regulate data providers any way other than as common carriers, the same as other utilities.