

7521115585.txt

In regards to the internet it should be classified as a common carrier service, as many people do use the internet for many different reasons such as research or as I am doing now, which is sending a comment to the Federal Communications Commission. Please remember that the original and true spirit of the internet is a way to freely communicate thoughts and ideas to one another for any group or individual equally, from the intellectual to the common person.