

7521116631.txt

Broadband internet and ISPs should be classified as common carriers. If they are not classified in this way they threaten to cause the internet to change from a massive collection of free flowing ideas and originality into a swamp of stagnated censored material. Free flow of ideas is what built the internet and turned it into what it is now it is also a large part of what this country was built on.