

7521118389.txt

Maintaining net neutrality is important for the present and future of our country and world. ANY concessions in neutrality at this point will lead to greater abuses in the future. This has been proven time and again throughout history. A small control over the flow of information leads to larger and larger control over the general populace, and noone ever knows for certain who will be in the power seat tomorrow.