As a internet user since 1996 or so and an adult that has grown up with it the internet is a part of my history and life. Providers like Comcast and AT&T should not be able to curtail or limit the internet. It was not created by them and it's use is a public right and any effort to curtail the internets is akin to limiting freedom. Granted the internet has it's flaws and such like torrents or any of those other things that are illegal. But the internet has so much good and limiting that would be like China limiting access to it or North Korea or any despot and America is not any of those or at least I thought and hoped we are not.
