

7521119200.txt

Please, as an online content creator and web designer, I believe it is vitally important that the FCC reclassify broadband internet as a telecommunications (or "Common carrier") service. The current classification is potentially detrimental to my livelihood and it is bad for equal access to online resources and competition on an even playing field.

James Fuller