

7521119276.txt

The FCC should immediately move to protect free speech, consumers and network neutrality through reclassifying broadband providers as telecommunications (or "Common carrier") service.

This is a First Amendment issue and Internet Service Providers should not control the electronic transferring of ideas based on their own biases. Net Neutrality is a paramount principle if our nation is to proceed into the future decades, by keeping neutral a key communication institution.