

7521119611.txt

please make the classification of the internet as a common carrier service. ISP's created and stood on the precedent that they are supplying this service equal to all content, now that the infrastructure is complete they appear to be changing that. Also that the company is going to be making a profit from both sides of the operation with little room for competition is starting to show signs of monopolizing the service or if not a monopoly more likely an oligarchy. the internet is a very fundamental part of peoples and companies lives and these recent advances from the Internet Service Providers are an abuse of power that they do not need over both sides of the operation of the internet.