

7521119914.txt

The ISP's need to be classified as "Common Carriers" so that network traffic can be treated equally. If you were to receive your Amazon order 3 days later because Amazon didn't pay UPS more money to deliver your packages on time, wouldn't you be upset? Especially when those services have to charge more for their goods to cover the extra costs?

Please do not vote on the "fast lane" and vote for the "common carriers".