

7521120414.txt

The FCC should not allow Comcast's proposed merger with Time Warner Cable. A merger between the two largest cable and Internet companies in America can only mean fewer choices, worse service, and higher prices for consumers. With the limited to no choices currently available to most Americans, this merger will mean that Americans may have zero options when looking to ISPs.