

7521120480.txt

The Internet should be reclassified as a telecommunications service because it is absolutely integral to the way people communicate with each other, find jobs, create small companies and foster economic growth, organize movements for important causes, help each other, and foster important relationships and networks. To let cable companies/etc. would be to limit the growth of humanity as whole. Please keep the Internet free, and retain net neutrality with your policymaking!