

As an individual, not in the internet, communications, or computer industries, I am strongly in favor of protecting the open internet, and preventing internet service providers controlling the access and availability of internet service. This will fundamentally change the nature of the internet from the relatively neutral service to channel controlled by a very limited group of companies. This will move the service in this country into the controlled medium of autocratic countries, with the controls being in the hands of the ISPs. This will lead to the incompatibility with the service in other countries. This will risk loss of control from within our borders when one of the few ISPs move off shore. Please keep the internet free and open.
