

7521120796.txt

The internet is a forum of worldwide knowledge and expression. Limiting, and controlling the speed as to which people obtain their service is a cheap trick to a dollar. Those who rationalize the argument with the thinking that someone or some entity would be able to monitor the multinational companies who provide access to the internet is laughable, and completely misguided. This complaint is FOR keeping net neutrality.