Comcast and other cable providers are common carriers that provide access for bits of data to be exchanged between a client and a host. They do not have the right to control the speed of exchange based upon the client or the host. This monopoly must be stopped now! Comcast has now reached a similar threshold to that of AT&T and Standard Oil. It's the responsibility of lawmakers to ensure that liberty and justice is maintained in the land. The internet should maintain it's fundamental purpose and not be manipulated by monopolies.
