

7521121430.txt

A neutral, open, un-bias internet is a fundamental human requirement, as is access to water and air. The furtherance of humanity hinges on the ability to inform, collaborate, and communicate globally. Allowing favored entities faster telecommunication services is a massive detriment to the entities who are not favored or cannot afford the fees associated with being favored. In the end its all people who suffer as access to information of all kinds, especially opinionated topics, slows to a crawl.