

7521121719.txt

I am writing to defend net neutrality. I understand the argument of the ISP's to improve performance of the internet requires lots of money and in efforts to fill their coffers they feel the need to decry that the best way of going about this is to create a two tier system for the internet between web consumers and those who provide the conduits that provide for every user. That might be the best way, but only the best way to control the monopoly. The right thing isn't always the easiest thing to do but the best thing to do is maintain the equality that currently exist. To protect that equality in the form of net neutrality for everyone; Users and Providers without bias, favoritism or bending the the will of special interests because it's easier and more profitable than to serve all mankind that have access to information all over the planet readily available. That informations covers the spread; from religious sites, porn, hate speech, cat videos, astronomy, astrology, dating sites, blah blah blah ad nauseum. (for the record I know that nauseum is not an actual word, but you understand the context I'm sure) Clearly, my point is I hope it's more that a fool's hope that the FCC won't fuck this VERY important issue up and keep the internet free and fair.

Thank you for your time,

Jason B. Hickok