

7521122929.txt

If the utility companies are allowed to discriminate between those who pay more and those who pay less, I foresee the following. All investments to improve the internet highway will go to develop service for those who pay the most and the others will just have to get by on what is left. Since we are so far behind the rest of the world these companies should be regulated to make sure that the internet is available to everyone. The tax payers paid to develop the internet and the companies have been granted the air waves for free so the companies can afford to give all of good internet access. So make the net a utility and protect the access for all.
Thank you.