

7521123223.txt

Disposing of Net Neutrality is like giving the power companies the ability to dim our lightbulbs and then charge more for better power connections, or charge more to use multiple lightbulbs at a time. Or pay an extra fee for using any brand of lightbulbs other than the one sponsored by the power company. This would also put an end to free speech in the media, as the media shifts more and more over to the internet.