

7521123345.txt

A retired senior, I experienced the growth of the Internet from a communication tool for researchers to the more frivolous and business oriented network it has become. I am opposed to proposed changes (mis)labeled 'net neutrality' because it will distribute resources unfairly - more for those whose primary interest in the Internet is monetary profit and less for those whose interests are more social and personal.