

7521123620.txt

I would like to strongly urge the FCC to preserve Net Neutrality. Allowing the internet providers to charge for "fast lanes" and other types of data throttling would unfairly discriminate against small start-ups and competitors to the ISPs. The internet is a crucial component of the economy of the United States, and the ISPs should be regulated as common carriers.