Please reclassify internet service as a title II common carrier telecommunications service. Phone Companies cannot choose who I can call, and so ISPs should not choose what Sites I can make a web call to. They also should not be able to charge the person I am making a web call to a tariff to send me data.

The large ISPs have already squeezed out most of the small ISPs since the infrastructure require is akin to a specialized utility network. So giving these large ISPs more control will only serve to reduce competition especially in competing parallel services (ie tv and Phone).
