Dear Sirs;

Please mandate that ISPs be classified as common carriers under Title II of the Telecommunications Service Act. Broadband is a utility. The business world, education and most every citizen depends on the internet in the conduct of their daily lives. Classifying ISPs as common carriers would prevent discrimination on the Internet once and for all. This action would allow us to rival other nations with a truly free and protected Internet, already true in most developed countries. The Internet is something the world now depends on for the sake of business, education, and a plethora of other needs and services. The Internet should no longer be considered an optional information service, but a regulated utility.

Please take action to move the US out the the third world of information providers, for the sake of the nation as well as its citizens.

Regards,
Ed Arenz
