Dear FCC,

I'm Ruby Sinreich and I live in Durham, NC.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) should treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The Internet is a key communication tool in our society. Democracy itself depends on us having free access to information and to each other through the Internet. Please don't allow corporations to throttle our ability to communicate.
