Hello. I wanted to inform you that I am completely against implenting any kind of regulations that would allow ISPs to charge for a faster internet for certain companies that are willing/able to pay for it. This will not only affect most, if not all, startups but will ruin them. Not only that, but the American people are not in favor of this. We are proud of the freedom that we have in this country and placing restrictions on the internet is not something we want to see. I would like broadband internet reclassified as a title II common carrier telecommunications service. The internet should be left open and alone.
