Consumers deserve a choice in services - PLEASE do not allow ISP's to provide preferential or discriminatory access to data.

This might surprise you, but in many areas of the country there are no real options for internet service - either you go with the only cable provider or the only dial-up provider in the area. To be further forced to consume their online services instead of only their access to other services, would hurt the American consumer and tech startup.

There is NO reason to allow the "pay to play" internet structure that is proposed - it will do absolutely nothing but stifle innovation and set the US behind foreign innovators in the long run. Don't listen to the fat cats at Comcast - listen to the population of the US. We don't want this.
