

Good morning

This is Pau Reguera, I am a Citizen. It means my rights were recognized by Government, because I born with them. Nobody gave me, rather I often have to fight for them. It means I am not more than the US president, neither less. We have flesh, a brain and some feelings.

The History is watching you. Right now. You are going to firm a law and it will define the path for internet and many people in the world. People that are using the internet for civil purposes. In Egypt, Spain, Greece, people coordinate to fight for those really big and important things, like a roof over their heads and some food for their stomachs (and son's)

But if you don't care about those things, well, think of economy. How many new companies survive thanks to the neutrality of the net. Making you weird richer. Somalian children say hello.

And, damn it. Can't you feel this neutrality is so interesting? So funny? So exciting?

Again. The History is watching you. And it's staring at you thinking like -more or less-, oh, come on, humans invented a so-exciting-platform, and look! now come politicians and they are going to... oh... oh... yeah... the same than ever.

Don't be the skeleton at the feast.

Kind regards
one of the citizens in the world.