

7521131640.txt

We MUST maintain net neutrality. This is vital for maintaining what the First Amendment guarantees, especially freedom of speech, and of the press. I will be clear: I do not want, nor do I believe it is right, for a government to monitor or censor certain types of speech, expression, or press. A free and open internet is necessary to maintaining a free and open society. Anyone, whether government or corporations, who use their power to suppress these ideas is in the wrong. You have seen what happens when other countries suppress the internet. This is not a threat, but a reality. We won't stand for it. I live in the United States, not North Korea, and I demand my government act like it. For once, do something good for the people, not what's going to line you and your pals' pockets. You represent us. It would do you well to not forget that.