

Dear FCC & Tom Wheeler,

The proposed changes to the telecom rules in respects to an open and neutral internet are extremely troubling to me. The internet has revolutionized and democratized communications across not only the United States, but all over the world. Protecting the neutrality of the internet is of equal or more important to me, as a United States citizen, than the protection of some of my civil rights, such as the right to bare arms. I call for explicit prohibition of the proposed rule changes. The proposed changes hinder entrepreneurship and impede progress, if allowed. These changes will concentrate too much power and must not be allowed.

Respectfully Yours,

Stephen Sudano
s.sudano@gmail.com
924 Maple St.
Bohemia, NY 11716