I do not feel comfortable as an american to allow companies to decide what content I have access to, this extends way beyond the FCC's reach to end net neutrality... the internet isn't just entertainment it is a public utility, it is just as important as the roads we drive on and the electricity we use in our homes. Without net neutrality, you adversely affect small businesses who will not be able to compete with the monopolies in terms of getting content as well as being able to communicate and use applications effectively, you jettison capitalism and put our country even more firmly in the hands of an oligarchy.
