

FCC's Net Neutrality proposal FCC 14-61, GN Docket No. 14-28 is a bad idea for the internet and American competitiveness. By allowing bandwidth to be sold to the highest bidder, competition will be impossible for new and innovative start-ups. Equal access is what allowed companies like Twitter, Facebook, YouTube, and others to change how people use the web. If they were hampered by less innovative companies with deeper pockets we would still be using bulletin boards and watching DVDs. Please reverse this decision and allow equal access to all.

Thanks,

Mark Wisner