I am appalled that the internet is trying to be suppressed and slowed to a crawl and only going to be high-speed applicable to those that can pay an additional fee for the privilege ! I understand that high-speeds are already available in other countries and, after being promised this for years, we now find that it comes at a price because those that control the access to the IP's want to control the high speeds to only those that can afford it and to slow down everyone else.

The professor that designed the internet did so for public access and for it to be completely free for all ! That design has worked just fine and should never be hampered by money !

Please, this is not coming from a wealthy person, I'm 63 and live on a limited income, the majority of people are just getting by and schools are accessing the internet for children and they should not be charged to use high speed internet any more than we should.

Thank you for your consideration.
