

7521141299.txt

Require standardized information disclosures so that consumers can make meaningful price to service comparisons in the market. It is also important that advertised prices must include all taxes, fees and associated charges. Consumers need to be clearly informed of the price that they will pay once an introductory price has expired before the contract is signed. It is paramount for consumers to understand what information maybe collected and whether or not it will be shared with other entities. In good spirit, it would be nice for people to know how to properly dispose of electronic equipment that may contain rare earth metals.